Washington Gossip.

The event of last week in Washington, so far as southern social circles were concerned, was the Southern Relief Society ball at the New Willard on Tuesday night. The event was by far the most successful of the long list of triumphs of this character to the credit of the society. The attendance was much larger than usual, and while the South was more fully represented than any other section of the country, the ball was remarkable, by reason of the fact that all sections were so fully represented among the participants and the onlookers.

Baltimore Man Eager to Tell of His Experiences With "Fads and Fancies."

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NEW YORK, January 21.-Regardless of the outcome of the trial of Norman who is charged with criminal libel by Joseph M. Deuel, who is a Judge of Special Sessions Court and shareholder tor, it is more than likely that when the two men on a charge of blackmatt.

While the identity of these men may be while the inertity of these men may be guessed. Mr. Jerome will not admit he intends to take any such step, nor will he say who are the men who by their admissions during the present trial have placed themselves open to such a charge, But he and dozens of lawyers who have watched the progress.

placed themselves open to such a charge. But he and dozens of lawyers who have watched the progress of the trial before Judge Fitzgerald in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court are of the opinion that the disclosures are such that there is no other course open. Further than this, there is no doubt that an application will be made to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to disbar Judge Deuel, in that he has violated section 1,416 of the Greater New York charter, in engaging in another business while he was on the Special Sessions bench.

Productive of sensations as it has been since the matter was brought before a public tribunal, it is believed that when the trial is resumed on Monday all that has gone before will be overshadowed for there are witnesses to be called who will if what they say is substantiated, be able to throw a wonderful light on the methods of Town Topics, of Colonel W. d'Alton Mann—'spelled with a small 'd,' an apostrophe and a capital 'A,'" as the Colonel announced—and on the inducements or otherwise by which more than a hundred prominent men were made to see hteir way clear to paying $1,600 for a copp of 'Pads and Fancles," a work fostered by all who were connected with Town Topics.

WHAT MANN SAYS.

Inasmuch as the trial, which has lasted for the whole of the last week, and which may not be ended until the end of this week, has attracted such general interest, it may not be amiss to tell what the principals in it have to say at this functure.

While Judge Deuel is the moving spirit in the libel settle set.

While Judge Deuel is the moving spirit in the libel suit, and while he has been open to extended cross-examination, Colonel Mann, as the owner and editor of Town Topics, which was hit over the shoulders of Judge Deuel in the article in Collins, Which was his over the shoulders of Judge Deuel in the article first say. He was in the office of Town Topics, in Fifth Avenue, yesterday, in consultation with Judge Deuel, when he was seen. Parting his white whiskers be quoted incorrectly, and therefore why should I talk? Considering the way the trial is reported there is every reason for my keeping quiet. I have noticed, in reading the newspaper reports of the trial, that anything seeming to be adverse to our side of the case is given in full, while all that is in our favor is carefully omitted. Of course, I can see as well as you do that as the trial is progressing now everything seems to be against Judge Deuel, myself and Town Topics, and I suppose, this being the case that you boys must have your filing as long as this continues. But this will not last always. Our side will be made all right before the trial is ended, and then it may be different. As I do not believe if I said anything now, that I would be reported any more carefully than my utterances on the stand have been I think it is my part to say nothing, but to make all my utterances from the witness stand.

DEUEL HAS NO COMMENT.

"Surely," said Judge Deuel," "you must agree with me that it would be manifestly improper, for me to comment on the trial at this point."

Robert J. Coiller, of the firm which employs Mr. Hapgood, while not wishing to say a word, remarked:

"I am entirely satisfied with the progress of the trial."

When the trial is resumed to-morrow morning Colonel Mann will be cagain on the stand, and it is said his cross-examimorning Colonel Mann will be again on the stand and it is said his cross-examination will not go on for more than half the day. Then, with no other witnesses for the prosocution, Mr. Osborne will open for the defence and there will be called at least a dozen witnesses. All of these will be examined by Edward M. Shepard and the cross-examination will be taken up by District Attorney Jerome. The appearance of Oliver H. P. Belmont on the stand as a witness for the defence is taken as an indication that other men in as eminent positions as he in the social and financial world may volunteer their testimony. James A. Burden, Jr., who was approached for a subscription for "Fads and Fancies" by Robert A. Irving, will be called to tell of the threats which were made to him as a reason for his giving $1,500 for a copy of "Fads and Fancies."

Bernard L. Baker will also be a witness coming from his home in Baltimore to testify. He sent a telegram to Mr. Collier 'yesterday saying he would be on hand early this week. He will tell, it is believed, how members of his family were attacked in Town Topics after he had refused to subscribe for "Fads and Fancies."

had refused to subscribe for "Fada and Fancies."

IMPORTANT WITNESSES.

Probably the most important witnesses, however, will be Charles Stokes Wayne, who has been with Town Topics for nincteen years and knows all about its methods; Moses Ellis Wooster, whose scheme "Fada and Fancies" was and who was its principal solicitor, and Robert A. Irving, who asisted Wooster in getting subscriptions. May Hartmann, who is the stenographer for Colonel Mann, will be called, but as she is said to be loyal to the Colonel it is not likely much will be drawn from her further than the identification of latters and documents dictated by the Colonel and those received by him. by him. Colonel Mann will be examined at

Colonel Mann will be examined at length; in all probability, as to the 10,000 he borrowed from E. Clarence Jones, a Wall Street promoter, and which he admitted he has never repaid. It is said it will be shown, from the columns of Town Topics that many paregraphs disparaging to Mr. Jones had been printed in the weekly, and that there came a sudden change and nothing but fulsome notices were printed about him. It is believed it will be shown that after the disagreeable notices had continued for some time they changed two days before Colonel Mann sailed for Europe, and it was on this day that he obtained the loan of 10,000 from Mr. Jones. It is also said Many of the passengers were Russian Jews, fleeing from the intolerable condi-tions at home. One of these was Jennie

FAULTS AT OXFORD SOUSA'S MARCHES DR. OSLER FOUND

Declares English University Is Not Up to Standard of Some American Institutions-Has No Pharmaceutical or Hygienic Institutes, and Besides is Too Close to London.

BALTIMORE, MD., January 21.—That Dr. William Osler is of the opinion that Oxford University is not up to the high standard of such institutions as Johns Hopkins Hospital and others of its kind in America, and that Oxford cannot be a great medical center, is the sense of an address of the doctor to the medical and chirorsical faculty of Maryland. Dr. Osler states;

"The university is now fairly well equipped for medical courses. There are now two things lacking to make the school complete, and they are a pharmaceutical institute and an institute of hygiene, and it is to be hoped that they will be secured at an early date."

Of the methods of teaching, Dr. Osler said:
"There is very little locturing done at Oxford. A student may pass through an entire course and never hear a single course and never hear a single lecture. There is no boring to death with lectures. The teaching is largely by tutoring, the student being in the charge of a special instructor, which, I think, is an admirable system."

Indirectly, he deplored the habit in English universities of considering the degree as the whole thing. On the other hand, he favored the thoroughness of the English examination. He said that there the examiner is customarily appointed from the outside, and that the time taken for the examination is about twice as long as here.

Dr. Osler was incilined to criticise the shortness of the terms at Oxford. "In fact." he said, "the terms are only eight weeks long, and there are only three terms. It is particularly too short for laboratory work. About the time you get settled down to work, off the men go."

Dr. Osler said that Oxford can never become a great medical center, as it is situated too close to London, which is a great clinical center, and, naturally, draws the profession to it. One of the instructors in the laboratories complained that by the time the men got really interested in their work they left.

"The Rhedes students are interesting figures at Oxford," observed Dr. Osler. "They are attached in groups of four or five to each of the various colleges. The young men from this side have taken up the work successfully and have ragidly assimilated thamselves with the customs of the institution."

While Judge Deuel denied specifically to James W. Osborne, that he ever had transacted any business for "Fada and Fancles" or for Town Topics while hactually was sitting on the bench, it is said Mr. Wooster will go on the standand tell that on innumerable occasions he went to the court where Judge Dewel was presiding and talked with him about the affairs of "Fada and Fancles." The defence, it is believed, will make no metion to have the indictment against Mr. Hapgood dismissed, being confident the jury will acquit him after short deliberation.

Mantell Iin IShakespeare - Will Play King Lear, Hamlet and Macbeth.

Sousa and his bend will be heard at the Academy of Music to-night. The engagement of the famous bandmaster is always a musical event that attracts a large audience, and his present engagement will not be an exception.

Sousa is nothing if not original. In the twenty-fifth year of his career as band conductor he has, without question, heard a larger amount of music, day for day, than any other musician the world knows, A careful calculation shows that he has appeared in not less than 8,000 concerts, and has conducted not far from 20,600 compositions, counting repeats. Every imaginable harmonic and orchestral combination have come under his direct and sympathetic notice, yet he has been strong enough and original enough to ignore them all and write compositions in the march form that are so different from all others, that instantly their peculiar qualities are recognized. The leading music critic of Berlin, Germany, puts it this way: We can always place our inseer in a Wagnerian composition and said that a one detects a Sousa march and is forced to say: This is Sousa.

W. O'B. MacDonough has presented to the trustees of the British Museum the skull and bones of the great racehorse Ormonde, in the opinion of many good judges the best horse of the nineteenth century.

The remains recently arrived in England in good condition, and are now in the hands of the English preparator to be mounted for exhibition in the hall of domesticated animals, which already contains specimens of several great English theroughbreds, including the skull of Ben d'Or, the sire of Ormonde, and the skeleton of Stockwell, of whom he was a lineal descendant.

Pleasures Various. How different do the peoples of the earth take their pleasures! In a statis-tical book just issued in Madrid it is estimated that for luxuries the Span-who do not drink any have asked for who do not drink any have asked for a string a cents in money, which being a france, is a sufficiently large sum for a badly paid house physician to put in his pocket.

"What pleayune economics!" I hear you exclaim, Well, it is these savings that make France the richest country in Europe, and when other countries are in Hard up," they come to France to borrow money. Has not Baudin called France "the bank of Europe?"—Brooklyn Eagle.
